Future Farmers Hold Successful Banquet in Addison Monday Eve.

Dr. Hoskins of Cornell Delivered Principal Address—University Boys Give Interesting Skit—Banquet Served by Home Economics Department—Musical Program Preceded Meal.

The first annual Father and Son banquet of the Addison Chapter, Future Farmers of America, was held in the commercial rooms of Addison High School Monday evening at seven-thirty. The school Home Economics Department served the banquet under the direction of Mrs. Norman Phelps. Robert Hallett, president of the club, acted s toastmaster.

The main address of the evening was given by Dr. E. R. Hoskins of Cornell, who spoke interestingly about the growth of Future Farmer clubs. He explained that the F. F. A. was started in 1926 to train young men for rural leadership. It has grown since that time from 13 chapters with 356 members to 200 chapters with 3,000 members.

A highly entertaining, humorous act was presented by Messrs. Rozelle and Noakes, two Cornell University students. Toasts were given by Supervising Principal Robert A. Willson and Burrell Vastbinder, president of the Board of Education. The address of welcome was given by Wilford Hurd. Frank Finnerty, head of the Addison Agriculture Department, thanked all who had helped to make the banquet a success. Marcus Tubbs, vice president of the Allegany-Steuben section of the F. F. A., spoke on the subject of cooperation between Future Farmer chapters.

The banquet was enlivened with a musical program, the Rev. J. V. Axtell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, leading the community singing. Eldon Seaman presided at the piano. Raymond Young pleased the listeners with a vocal selection and a number of local boys under the direction of Gerald Heidrick entertained with music between the courses.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

Senator David Reed defeated Governor Pinchot in the primary battle waged Tuesday in Pennsylvania for the Senator's seat in Congress. Reed's victory is regarded by G. O. P. partisans as a turning point against the present administration, as he has often severely critized the policies of the New Deal. Guffey will be the Democratic standard bearer to oppose Reed in next November's election.

One of the most rapid cases on record of criminal prosecution of kidnappers was ended yesterday when three men who snatched the millionaire Gettle were given sentences of life imprisonment. The conviction came hardly 24 hours following the men's arrest and only 25 minutes after their indictment by a California jury. The convicted are: Ray Williams, Jimmy Kirk, and Larry Karrigan.

Little June Robles, kidnap victim, was rescued Monday, literally from a living grave, a few miles from her home at Tuscon, Arizona. A letter postmarked Chicago, gave directions that led to her discovery in a three by six hole dug under cactus plants. The child had been chained in the pit and was found sucking an orange. No ransom was paid.

William Gettle, Los Angeles millionaire, was released without payment of ransom the first of this week. Three men and two women were arrested in connection with the kidnap plot. Gettle was found bound and gagged in a house that stood in the foothills where occurred the New Years day flood that killed so many people. He had been held for $60,000 ransom. Just previous to the delivery hi-jackers tried to intercept payment of the huge sum, but the bearer shot himself to liberty.

President Roosevelt asked this week for an additional $1,322,000,000 to use for public relief and public works. He asked that this futher huge sum be placed in his own hands to use as he would see fit. Included in his estimate of need would be a ten million dollar fund for combatting bootlegging.

Appropriate Sum To Complete Jail

Supervisors in Session at Bath, Allot $2000 to Finish Work Started as CWA Project—Duties of Disbursing Agent Abolished.

At Monday's meeting of the Steuben County Board of Supervisors, held in Bath, a resolution was adopted appropriating $2,000 to cover labor expenses necessary for completion of alterations to the former county jail, which was begun as a CWA project. It was explained by Supervisor Dimmick that owing to dispute regarding hours of labor, much difficulty had been encountered in keeping men at work It was stated that under the new program carpenters would work forty hours weekly at 80 cents per hour and that masons would receive $1.00 per hour for the same number of hours per week.

Supervisor Dimmick explained that the superintendent who had been in charge under the CWA would be transferred to the rolls of the county work bureau, and it was further explained that due to inability to secure men the superintendent had worked many days when his force numbered but two or three.

It was suggested by the Rev. Carl J. Grabb, chairman of the county emergency work bureau, that hereafter checks of TERA workers be distributed to supervisors and given out by them to the workmen in their respective towns. This procedure, which was adopted by the board, is designed to save the salary and milage heretofore paid to distributing agents. Prior to adoption of the resolution, the Rev. Grabb answered criticism on the administrative costs of the bureau. He said that milage of agents of the bureau had been budgeted at approximately $1,000 per month. It is planned to cut that expense, he said, and to eliminate all unnecessary employees in order to maintain a low overhead for the bureau.

Supervisors R. J. McGill of Bath, John McIntyre of Wayne, and Forrest Loper of Jasper opposed in conference a plan outlined by Judge E. S. Brown, District Attorney Pratt relative to a county employee for special court work, investigations, etc.

A resolution was introduced by Supervisor Rinehart of Corning authorizing employment of a special employee to work in the performance of investigations for the district attorney, for county and children's court and do other necessary work. Such employee to receive a salary of $2,000 a year and be allowed 6 cents for each mile covered in performance of duties. After reading the resolution Supervisor Rhinehart moved that it be tabled.

A resolution expressing regret of the supervisors at the recent death of Joseph Leahy of Hornell was adopted. This resolution was drafted by Supervisor Zina Bowen and Supervisor Fred Dimmick. Mr. Leahy had served as supervisor from Hornell during a period of eleven years.

An appropriation of $550 was authorized for purchase of a new automobile for use of the county children's agent. This resolution was introduced by Supervisor Tripp of Cohocton. Upon request of the newly organized county health officers' association, Chairman Walter M. Goff named Supervisors R. J. Magil and M. A. McConnell as a committee to confer with the officers of the new association.

Rathbone Young Man Narrowly Escapes Death in Oil Well Mishap

Fractured Skull When Thrown by Anchor Rope — Hurled 25 Feet — Was Assisting in Tubing Well on Father's Farm on Northrup Hill.

Alton Sherwood, of Rathbone, suffered a fractured skull and narrowly escaped death Tuesday afternoon when he was thrown by an anchor rope that tossed him through the air like a chip. The young man, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Sherwood of Northrup Hill, was helping tube an oil well on his father's farm when the accident happened.

Mr. Sherwood had engaged Preston Ferris of this place to tube this well, the only oil producer in the Rathbone field. The tackle ropes for lowering the pipe were secured to an anchor post, or "deadman", driven in the ground some distance from the well. Alton Sherwood happened to be standing astride of this anchor rope when the post suddenly gave way, and the rope acting like a huge bowstring caught the young man and hurled him some 25 feet through the air. The young man landed on his head and shoulders in a pile of pipe, knocking him temporarily unconscious.

He was brought to an Addison physician who advised that he be taken to a hospital for a careful examination. X-ray pictures at the Bath Hospital revealed the fact his skull was slightly fractured and one neck vertebrae was displaced. He also suffered severe burns on his legs from the drag of the rope, as it snatched him through the air. Unless complications set in, it is believed the injuries will not prove dangerous.

The well on which the young man was working struck oil more than two years ago. No move to recover the oil had been made until Mr. Sherwood engaged Mr. Ferris to run tubing and pumping rods in it this spring. The well produced a fine quality of Pennsylvania oil when bailed by the drilling rig.

Mr. Veazie has conducted a general store and feed business in Coopers Plains where he has been well and favorably known for many years. He will carry a full line of Eshelman products at the Addison agency and will also do custom grinding.

Ag Teachers Hold Banquet At Addison

The monthly meeting of the agriculture teachers of Allegany-Steuben section was held last Thursday evening in the American House. A steak dinner was served at seven o'clock, following which an informal discussion was held concerning the Ag track meet to be held at Bath fair grounds May 24. Addison students will compete.

At eight o'clock the meeting was turned over to Dr. Worthen, professor of Agronomy of Cornell University who discussed, "Fertilizers in the Rotation". He pointed out that there is no "best" time to use fertilizers in the rotation, and that the majority of farmers do not appreciate the benefits succeeding crops derive from fertilizers. Dr. Worthen expressed his opinion that at present phosphates are probably the most economical fertilizers that can be purchased. He advocated supplying the other necessary elements by the use of farm manure and legumes.

The meeting was attended by William Stempfle, Steuben County Farm Bureau manager, Raymond Hall of Hammondsport, Smith Beilby of Bath, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Huey of Bradford, Marcus Tubbs of Prattsburg, Herman Paulas of Almond, Frank Finnerty of Addison and the speaker, Dr. Worthen of Ithaca.

Women Named To County Committee

Fifty-five additional members of the Democratic county committee have been appointed by Mrs. W. Howard Vanderhoef, associate chairman. The appointments were made pursuant to a resolution recently adopted that each election district have at least one woman member and that this be done by adding to the membership. The new appointees will hold office until the fall primary, when party members in each election district will elect the committee members. Three committee members in each district will be elected hereafter, instead of two as in the past.

Appointments announced by Mrs. Vanderhoef include:

Addison—Dist. No. 1, Miss Nora Finnecan; No. 2, Mrs. Rose Sheehan.
Campbell—Dist. No. 1, Mrs. Ella Reed; No. 2, Mrs. Beatrice Calahan.

TERA Stand Endangers Rule Of Counties, Says Hardenbrook

Steuben Welfare Commissioner Discusses "Present and Future of Relief" — Relief Policy Must Have as Goal the Replacing of Dependents on Self-Sustaining Basis, He Contends.

That the New York State Temporary Emergency Administration is deliberately planning to take over all home and work relief activities in the state, was charged by E. Ray Hardenbrook, Steuben County Commissioner of Public Welfare, in an address at the Young People's Forum in Elmira Sunday night.

Urges Home Rule

Mr. Hardenbrook declared it is becoming increasingly evident that the TERA is planning to remove the word "temporary" in its name and become the permanent state relief agency, eliminating "home rule" in this matter entirely. He opposed such control vigorously and created a lasting impression by his clear and concise handling of the entire relief problem.

In part Mr. Hardenbrook said: "Since there is no single cause of the depression through which we are passing, there is no single cure, nor can any particular plan be isolated and carried on of and by itself. There must be integration of the religious, social, industrial, commercial and financial forces of the country to bring us to that kind of living which we call normal.

"We who are engaged in the social field have seen the devastation brought about by the present economic condition. We see it daily and we face those who are discouraged, broke, suffering mentally and physically. We see life in the raw as no one else sees it. We have the opportunity to go hand in hand

Banquet At Church of Redeemer Celebrates Eightieth Anniversary

Rev. Francis Lynch Presides — Mrs. James H. Park, Hon. Delmar M. Darrin and Mrs. Frank Wade Honored as Oldest Members — Work of Father Withey and Church Societies Commended.

The eightieth anniversary of the incorporation of the Church of the Redeemer was celebrated at a banquet held Monday evening in the basement of the church. The Rev. Francis Lynch, rector of Christ Church, Corning, presided as toastmaster.

In preliminary remarks, Father Lynch stated that historical records reveal the activities of transient Episcopal clergymen in this section at a period more than one hundred years ago. At that time, the clergymen conducted services in the homes of communicants in different sections as no church had then been erected. The speaker said that early records tell of Bishop Hobart stopping at Painted Post and establishing a parish there. He emphasized that while the Addison church was incorporated eighty years ago the actual groundwork of establishing the organization had been laid through the patient labors of many early families, for many years before.

Father Lynch then introduced the Hon. Delmar M. Darrin, senior vestryman of the church as the oldest in point of membership in the church. Judge Darrin, in responding related several recollections dating back to his boyhood .He told of a Christmas tree at a hotel on Front Street where the then pastor of the church Rev. Mr. Park was temporarily residing. He also told of the old Academy school, the basement of which

A RISKY SWAP

What is the ideal state? Is it the national government which enters into the life of every individual, regulating his every move, controlling his income, dictating his relationships with other individuals, and eventually pensioning him for retirement at a certain definite age? Or is it the government which sees justice done between the various groups of its citizens, and leaves to their common sense the development of life's fortunes?

A few years ago ninety out of a hundred ordinary citizens in the land, whether their rank were high or low in the financial or social scale, would have voted for the latter course of being governed. It is probable that even more adherents of the Democratic political party would have been outspoken for individual initiative than would the same number of so-called Republicans. That is not to be wondered at for the cornerstone of the Democratic party, Jefferson, was the country's loudest exponent of the theory of rugged individualism, the antithesis of collectivism and regimentation in business.

Yet if one were to take a vote today on this burning question, it is more than likely a majority of Democrats would foresake the tenets on which the party of their fathers' was founded, and cling to this new far flung movement to put the government into every business in the land, save the tiniest, one-room affairs so individualistic as to be absolutely impossible of regulation. And by the same token it is to be expcted Republicans might band together in a solid rank of opposition to these drastic New Deal principles, which seem destined, unless something be done, to overthrow every basic rule on which the progress of the world has been builded.

This is one of the unfortunate things about a party form of government. In their rush to be regular the masses of a group cling with unthinking tenacity to the doctrines of their leaders. It is unfortunate in another sense, because any criticism of a policy from one of the opposite party is immediately ascribed to obstructionist motives. Though the editors of this paper may be sincerity itself in opposing many of the features of this Administration's policies, we must expect that readers belonging to the Democratic party may ascribe our motives to party politics. As a matter of fact this is not true.

Regardless of party affiliations we believe that in accepting the theories of a large group of young experimentalists in Washington, this country is treading on more dangerous ground than Lincoln's army trod at Gettysburg. Millions of Americans who have always before realized they must "earn their bread by the sweat of their brow", are now obsessed with the idea that they have a most paternal government which in some magical way can wave a wand and feed them.

An example of how this idea is spreading to unexpected groups came to light recently. A man traveling quite extensively through the south noticed large numbers of more elderly persons crowding the trains wherever he went. Conversations with many of these people elicited the fact they had been persons of at least moderate means who lost nearly all in the stockmarket crash of 1929 and bank closings of last year. Yet right now they were prodigally spending what little was left from the wreck, in the idea that they might as well have a good time as federal age pensions were just around the corner, to take care of an indigent old age.

This state of mind would have been unbelievable a decade ago, but today it is growing in the public fancy with alarming rapidity. It points us to the terrifying fact a few short months have carried us far along a road of dangerous, unknown termination.

This country grew great and rich through the theory that it was a land of boundless opportunity for the individual; a poor boy by work and thrift could become a rich man, and an obscure lad could and did climb to be President. Will we throw this priceless policy completely overboard for socialistic theories? It is a risky trade to "swap unsight and unseen."

A PROGRESSIVE EXAMPLE

Up to a couple of weeks ago Warsaw led the world in radio strength with a station of 158,000 watts, but that is far down the scale now as WLW of Cincinnati has shot on the air with its new 500,000 watt equipment which dwarfs the omnipotent reach of the Soviet station. Powel Crosley Jr., is father of this new and most powerful transmitting station.

Americans are built that way—constantly forging to the front of the world's ranks in science and invention with something bigger and better than any nation can boast. It is one of the traditions of this country to excel, a tradition which has carried us by swift leaps along the road of progress other lands have labored over in wearisome long years.

WLW's new station may well be a symbol of the return of better days for all. It is a sign of confidence in the future, and of all the things lacking for return of this country to days of prosperity the most crying need has been for "confidence". Measured by 1934 standards the resources of America are still boundless. We have a land of plenty, the most complete and swift transportation system in the earth on land, water and in the air. We have millions of workers skilled in a thousand trades, machines to turn out comforts for every living soul, banks bulging with money crying to be turned into channels of commerce and profitmaking. Yet the stupidity of stagnation has lingered like a London fog on the spirit of our hopes and ambitions.

Whipped by adversity, beaten by the cudgels of depression, the strong horse America is still a thoroughbred charger ready to grab a few mouthfuls of oats and hay, and then to dash eagerly back into the race that turned into a walk when our track became rutted with the mud of adverse world conditions.

What we need most of all is a little more of the confidence shown by the Crosley Company in launching its new, bigger station. Give Americans a little less interference by government in business and the tonic of stability which comes with belief that the profit motive of business shall again allow the wheels to turn, and those wheels will begin whirling with the old hum and rhythm that gave everyone the opportunity to earn a good living.

A POINTED QUESTION

It remained for a New York farmer to propound a question in economics that the wise Brain Trusters in the AAA group, could not answer.

At the recent milk meeting in Syracuse, called to discuss participation of New York dairymen in the federal plans for limiting production of milk, a young farmer arose to ask that it be made clear whether the government was promising to pay him for milk he did not produce, or simply for milk he did not sell. The AAA representative told him it was the latter. Then the farmer asked if he could feed his calves this milk he did not sell.

The farm audience saw the point immediately; what fun it would be to get a bonus for milk which could be used to raise more calves to grow into more cows to make more milk, that would call for another government contribution, etc. The AAA man dodged the question by answering it would be taken up later, but it never was and the point was brought home to the dairymen of this state that collectively they wanted nothing to do with a proposition based on such "screwy" ideas as those behind the Agriculture program of curtailment proposed by the Tugwell group.

The entire field of farming is a highly complicated affair which is pretty hard to regulate with rules laid down in a college laboratory. Farmers are so widely scattered and carry such divergent ideas anyway, that regulating their production in a land so extensive as the U. S., is something like the task of turning back Niagara with a tin dipper. And of all phases of farming regulation of the milk industry is by far the most complex. In the first place milk is a biological product which cannot be turned on and off with the twist of a faucett handle. Cows will go on giving milk during the lactation period, and must be fed daily or they die. The cow cycle is a matter of seven years duration and the remedy of curtailing supplies of milk by getting rid of cows today, may mean a great milk famine tomorrow.

Eastern farmers as a class, are a hard-headed lot of individuals not to be stampeded into a radically changed policy, unless they can get a clear picture of the Utopia into which it is proposed to herd them. Sometimes they may have been too slow to adopt progressive methods, but on the other hand as exemplified by the young farmer at the Syracuse meeting, they often find big holes in new policies which the more impulsive theoretical group would stumble flat across in their eagerness to push into something new.

Never before was there so much need for the expression of solid citizens with sound, horse sense to keep us moving on an even keel. More of our representation in Congress should come either from the farmes themselves, or from the villages which are attune to the steadier agricultural view-point . And this representation should come largely from the eastern farmer, for his western brother with single crop ideas is too ready to go crying for help to the government.

EXCUSE US FOR LAUGHING!

And here is the best joker of the year—Puget Sound cities of Washington, deeply in debt for municipally-owned electric plants, protest against competition of federally-owned hydro electric plants on the Columbia River, which threaten cheaper rates. These tax-exempt plants which have preyed on the helpless investor in highly taxed private plants, are now getting a dose of their own medicine — competition from tax-exempt publicly-subsidized plants.

SPENDING $233 A SECOND

Washington, May 14— American taxpayers have been called upon to "kick through" with $233 every second since last July 1 for expenditures of the Federal Administration, more than half of which has gone and is going toward financing of the emergency recovery features of the New Deal, according to figures released by the U. S. Budget Bureau.

Government expenditures for the 10-Month period totaled $5,822,427,211, the Budget Bureau reported, which is an average of $19,152,392.14 every 24 hours.

Compared with this daily expenditure, the Government has been collecting an average of $8,184,154.89, leaving nearly $11,000,000 of the daily expenditure to be borrowed.

Reduced to smaller figures, this means that the Government has been spending $2.34 for every $1 collected. And the outgo, $1.28 has been for recovery programs.

BATH—If Bath is to remain a disbursing point for federal funds in relief of transients, its business men must bear a small part of the cost of the system. Such advice is that of a representative of the TERA communicated to Charles H. Thomas of Bath, Thursday. Mr. Thomas is agent for TERA relief at Bath and Corning and also exercises supervision over transient relief at Hornell.

Felonies or misdemeanors committed within the grounds of the Bath Soldiers' Home must be tried in Federal and not in the local court, according to a decision of Clarence Gunderman, Bath justice of the peace. The decision just rendered is in the case of the People against Lucius Allen, charged with assaulting Charles Harkness.

SIX BILLION SPENT

Federal expenditures for the fiscal year which ends June 30 passed $6,000,000,000 on May 9, marking the first government outlay of this size since 1920, when expenditures for the year reached $6,403,000,000. of the more than $6,000,000,000 already spent for this year, $3,342,715,504 was for emergency purposes. The deficit was reported as $3,410,509,129.

Why Some Bond "Guarantees" Are Worthless - Lehman Vetoes Bad Bill

Albany, May 15— Why so many "guaranteed" mortgage real estate bonds are next to worthless is revealed by an investigation now being carried on by a commissioner appointed by the Governor. Most of these bonds paid the holder 5½ per cent, though the borrower paid 6 per cent, the extra half of one per cent being taken by the guarantee company for its profits. There were scores of these companies whose names included the words "Mortgage", "Guarantee", "Title", and others intended to inspire confidence. More than a dozen of them have already failed, involving losses to half a million investors all over the State with holdings of more than a billion dollars.

How it Was Worked

These companies would take over entire mortgages, and apparently paid but little attention to the value of the property behind them. These were cut up into small amounts, represented by certificates, bearing one-half per cent less interest than the original, which were sold to the public with the company's guarantee of the payment of interest and principal. The joker lay in the fact that these companies, with assets relatively small, thus guaranteed the payment of bonds running into millions, many, many times what they would ever be able to make good. In addition they switched about the mortgages in bewildering fashion, so that when the mortgaged properties got into difficulties, as many of them did, the innocent holder found his guarantee absolutely worthless. Owing to the type of business, these companies were under the supervision of the State Insurance Department, which will have to shoulder the responsibility for failing to provide safeguards against this state of affairs, bringing disastrous loss to hundreds of thousands of people of the state. The Department's situation with respect to this is about the same as that of the Banking Department with respect to the failure of the City Trust Company and the Bank of the United States in New York City.

Nazi Persecution Echoes in Albany

There is an echo of the Nazi persecution of Jews in Germany in a bill signed the other day by Governor Lehman. In retaliation for that persecution the American Jews, particularly in New York City, have refused to buy goods made in Germany. So great is the feeling that the big department stores announced they had closed their purchasing agencies in that country and would handle no more German goods. Then it was discovered that in some of the smaller stores the "Made in Germany" label had been scraped off of goods. The bill signed by the Governor makes it a misdemeanor to "conceal or obliterate a trade mark indicating the source of manufacture of any article offered for sale".

Governor Vetoes a "Loose" Bill

The recent Legislature passed several "loose" bills, intended to make the halter of the law less irksome to those caught within it. In addition to the Quinn-Robinson parole bill, designated by judges and police authorities as a "general jail delivery act", it passed another making it easier for the company which bonds a man who goes wrong. At present such a company is given one year within which to produce the principal, and if it doesn't do so in that time it may be sued for the amount of the bond. The bill passed this year stretched the time from one year to three. It was among the first vetoed by the Governor after he got back from his vacation.

Main Roads to Go Around Cities

Under a bill recently approved by the Governor steps are to be taken to have the main highways of the state pass around cities instead of through them. A survey will be started at once to determine the feasibility and expense of such cut-offs, which would not only save time for the travelers but reduce congestion on the streets. Formerly there was some opposition to this plan on the ground that the cities thus passed would miss the business of the tourists, but an inquiry developed that through tourists brought but little business, and if they desire to make a purchase or have a car repaired they can always drive into the city anyhow.

Small Crowd for Thayer Hearing

One certain statement that can be made about the hearing of charges against Senator Thayer growing out of his relations with the Associated Gas & Electric Company, is that if it had been held during the session of the Legislature there would have been a larger crowd of spectators. With the lawmakers gone, Albany is relatively a quiet city, except about 5 o'clock when the several thousand employees of the state are wending their way home. Quite a few of these employees drift in from time to time during the day to listen to the testimony at the hearing, but the attendance is nothing like what it would be if all the winter residents hadn't gone home.

Bills Signed; Now Laws

Providing that no person shall catch more than six lake trout in one day, instead of ten as heretofore, except when two or more persons are angling from the same boat, when together they may possess ten.

Making possession of slot machines a misdemeanor — already 2000 machines have been seized in New York City on the basis of this law.

Making it a misdemeanor to violate the provisions against the sale of convict made goods.

Permitting village trustees to borrow money and issue bonds to pay any judgment recovered against the village, together with interest.

Providing that coke and coal shall be weighed on scales officially tested and sealed.

WASHINGTON SNAP-SHOTS

President Roosevelt isn't broadcasting it right now, but he is still shooting toward adjournment of Congress by June 1 . . . many observers believe this is impossible, but notwithstanding those are the instructions under which the Administration lieutenants are working . . . the fact that business suddenly became vocal on such drastic measures as the control of industry under guise of stock market regulation, the Wagner bill to establish within the Federation of Labor a monopoly, and the Tariff bill has added doubts in the minds of members of Congress . . . while business has objected to further regimentation, farmers of the South and West have acquired a similar complex recently and their wrath at some of the bureaucratic control legislation is being heard loudly in Washington . . . there is a whispered belief that the long-rumored resignation of General Johnson will be offered with the adjournment of Congress . . . many who have forecast this repeatedly have overlooked that fact that it could not come during Congress . . . his successor would have come under fire certainly from right-wingers or left-wingers, and it is good politics to wait until Congress gets out of town . . . the resignation of Everett Sanders as chairman of the Republican National Committee has started political gossiping anew about the future of the Republican party, with one guess as good as another as to who might be the presidential candidate in 1936 . . . Some talk is heard of building up Senator Barbour of New Jersey, a colorful figure and former amateur boxing champion, as a national figure . . . there is a general feeling that a definite swing is in progress against any more experiments by young theorists and that the United States will participate more readily in the general world-wide recovery if given a chance to settle down and catch a long-breath . . . if this happens, though, it will be without the blessing of the so-called Brain Trusters, who are determined to get through as much "trick" legislation as possible . . . Senator Wagner has been attempting to move heaven and earth to get his Labor Disputes bill out of committee but the light was thrown on it so fully by the opposition that it remained blocked for weeks and sharp revisions have been attempted, with chairman Walsh of Massachusetts recognizing the danger signals.

"Get License Now" Says Auto Bureau

Albany, May 14—The slogan of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles is: Get your 1934-35 automobile driving license now. There are more than 3,000,000 licensed drivers in this state and all know that driving licenses must be renewed each year. To license such a large number in the last days of the license year is an impossible task. For this reason the bureau has set aside the month of May for re-issuing licenses. Thus far this month scores of clerks in Bureau offices are idle because motorists are bent on putting off to the last minute what can be accomplished at present without confusion or delay.

Operators and chauffeurs who have not yet received 1934-35 licenses are urged by Charles A. Harnett, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, to take or send their renewal applications to the Bureau offices without waiting for the last day of the month. Credentials issued now are valid for the rest of the month as well as for the following year, and those who act without delay will aid in a more even distribution of licenses, save themselves annoyance and a waste of time, and facilitate the work of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

Filled-out applications may be sent to any Bureau office by mail, relieving the applicant of the necessity of a personal call. If postal facilities are used, send money-order or check—not cash. The re-licensing fees are unchanged—fifty cents for an operator's license and $2 for a chauffeur's.

The following guests were present: Mrs. Erwing Soleman and son Douglas, Mrs. Hazel Rogers and son Lyman, Mrs. Flora Snyder, sons Douglas and Robert and daughter and Mrs. Harvey Snyder of Elmira Heights were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Snyder. Leora, Mrs. Hazel Sullivan and daughter Agnes, Mrs. Winifred Padgett sons Raymond and Clifford, Mrs. Jane Morseman son Edward, Mrs. John Michel, and Mrs. Nancy Padgett.

Senator Seeks Special Session

State Senator Thomas C. Desmond, of Newburgh, is endeavoring to arouse a public demand for a special session of the legislature. He states emphatically that the Senate will have to return to Albany anyway in special session in the course of the next few weeks to hear the report of the Thayer investigating committee and that the Assembly also should be called back at the same time.

"The legislature did not finish its work," said Senator Desmond, "at the recent regular session, and such legislative work ought to be finished promptly for the general public good. In addition to other work, the forthcoming special session of the legislature should enact into law my mortgage authority bill which failed of passage in the confusion of the closing days of the recent session. This bill which I, a Republican, introduced, had also the expressed approval of Democratic Governor Lehman, thus removing this legislation from any considerations of partisan politics.

"At least five hundred thousand men and women in New York State may join in the demand for this special session, namely, the five hundred thousand unfortunate investors who hold the more than a billion dollars 'worth of guaranteed mortgage certificates, now in default, which my bill is intended to benefit. These certificates, purchased originally at par, not as speculations but as high grade trust fund investments, are now selling in many cases at fifteen or twenty cents on the dollar. Want and distress have resulted for many thousands of the holders.

Mothers' Day Observed At Union Services

mother of the Savior, forgiveness for the act of Judas is asked and unhesitatingly received. "Nearer My God To Thee" was played on the organ as Salome and Mary continued on their way together.

The Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold, pastor of the First Baptist Church, played a medley of Mother' Day melodies with organ accompaniment. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Ralph Webb, pastor of the First M. E. Church. A solo was sung by Mrs. Carl W. Hayes of Scottsburg, formerly of Addison, and long a favorite in local musical circles. The Rev. John V. Axtell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, recited his two favorite poems appropriate for Mothers' Day. One was "Cuddle Doon" by Alexander Anderson, given in the Scotch vernacular and revealing in a tender way the natural sentiment and atmosphere of motherhood. The second poem was "Mother" by James Whitcomb Riley.

"Mother's Prayers That Follow You" was sung by the audience and again, following the offering, the hymn, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow" was sung by the entire assemblage. "Tell Mother I'll Be There" was rendered by a trumpet trio consisting of Robert Dykins, William Wilson, and Dean Cole. Following an anthem by the choir, the audience sang, "This Is My Father's World."

The Rev. Carl W. Hayes, pastor of the Methodist Church at Scottsburg, and formerly pastor of the local M. E. Church, opened his Mothers' Day Message by reading the last chapter of the Book of Proverbs, which describes the ideal mother. He traced the origin of Mothers' Day to a period of more than four hundred years ago in England, when sons and daughters, residing away from home, were allowed a day free from their labors to visit their own mothers and pay tribute to all mothers, young and old.

"Why was Mary, the mother of Jesus, of all women in and about Judea?" asked Rev. Hayes, and he answered by saying, "Mary was the mother of Jesus because she was best fitted by and of herself to influence and mould that life, that character. God simply could not take a chance. He had to select the one woman best fitted to become the mother of Jesus. . . . Yet, after all, the same deep characteristics which made Mery the mother of Jesus are possessed by all mothers everywhere."

In explaining why we honor Mother, Rev. Hayes said, ". . . . because of our recollections, ampressions and appreciation of what she has done for us, also because we all need a bit of mothering ourselves at all times. Old and young, big and little, individuals and nations, need a bit of mothering once in a while."

Mothers, he said, instruct, counsel and set a good example to fulfill a definite place in the world.

"The highest and holiest thing about mothers is that there is some thing Godlike in them. It is God Himself instructing, counseling and setting us a good example. What greater gift can a mother give her child than Faith and the old sweet, beautiful story, The Lfe of Jesus?" said Rev. Hayes in conclusion.

Following the Mothers' Day message, floral tributes were awarded to Mrs. Eunice Bates, aged 98 years two months, twenty days, as the oldest mother present; to Mrs. Stella Crane, as the mother of twelve children; to Mrs. Roland Dininny, aged 19, as the youngest mother present; and to Mrs. Severence, who came 645 miles from North Carolina as the mother who came the longest distance. In making the presentation of the floral tributes, the Rev. Mr. Webb was assisted by a group of little girls consisting of Arlene Omelion, Marie Bebout, Doris Heidrick and Eileen Cole.

New Deal "Alphabet" Has 30 Combinations

Washington May 14— A bigger and better alphabet is the imperative need of the New Deal. There is overlapping at present, with CCC having to serve two New Deal organizations, and other new units in the making and threatening to complicate the "alphabet", as well as the taxpayers who must pay for the new along with the old activities. Here's the present list:

AAA—Agricultural Adjustment Administration.
CSB—Central Statistical Board.
CCC—Comodity Credit Corporation, also Civilian Conservation Corps).
EHFA—Electric Home and Farm Authority.
ECW — Emergency Conservation Work.

Republican Supers Offer Unusual Tribute To Cole And Pledge Full Support

Bath, N. Y., May 14—Most unusual is the tribute paid Attorney W. Sterling Cole, unopposed Republican candidate for Congress to succeed Gale H. Stalker, by the Republican supervisors of Steuben County. In perfect accord as to his qualifications for the office he seeks, and indicating his popularity throughout the district, the supervisors have signed a letter pledging their support to his candidacy.

The 28 Republican supervisors who have gone on record in a testimonial to Mr. Cole's character, ability and standing, represent all sections of the county, the two cities, large towns and small towns. The chairman of the board, Walter M. Goff, and the clerk of the board, Ira M. Platt, are among the signers. The communication is dated May 7.

This new evidence of the strength of Mr Cole follows the earlier announcement that every Republican committeeman and committeewoman in Steuben, except one, had assured him of their support.

The letter from the supervisors to Mr. Cole follows:

May 7, 1934

W. Sterling Cole, Att'y
Bath, New York

Dear Sterling:

Recognizing your superior ability and standing in this county where you were born and have grown up, in order to show our appreciation of your splendid manhood, we, the undersigned Republican Supervisors of the County of Steuben, do hereby pledge you our support in your ambition to represent us in Congress.

Very truly yours,

Walter M. Goff, Town of Addison; Zina C. Bowen, Town of Avoca; Frank R. Aulls, Town of Campbell; George C. Whiting, Town of Canisteo; Dan Bly, Town of Caton; Leon D. Tripp, Town of Cohocton; Ray C. "Addison's Oldest Store"

One out of every 4 Dollars you Spend goes for Food!

Isn't it worth a few cents a day to keep it fresh and wholesome?

If you are an average American family 25% of your total budget goes for food. Of this, ten cents out of every dollar is wasted. When you consider that an Electric Refrigerator would prevent much of this costly waste you can see that it is an actual economy, not an expense.

But this is only one way an Electric Refrigerator will save you money. It will enable you to take advantage of special food prices on bargain days . . . little savings here and there which will add up to dollars and dollars every month. It will enable you to save by serving countless inexpensive frozen desserts. Leftovers, now thrown away, can be kept and made into appetizing dishes.

Banquet At Church of Redeemer Celebrates Eightieth Anniversary

was at one time used for services by the Episcopal congregation.

Among early individual members of the church recalled by Judge Darrin were Katie Bliss and members of the Ames family. Judge Darrin stated that his father had been a vesteryman of the church from the time of its founding until his death and that he personally had held membership on the board since that time.

At the conclusion of Judge Darrin's remarks he was pleasantly surprised to receive a red rose from the hands of little Miss Martha Laffkas, in token of the esteem in which he is held by members of the congregation.

Mrs. James H. Park was then introduced by Father Lynch as being the oldest member in point of years. In responding, Mrs. Park said, "My earliest recollection is that of sitting on the steps of the Methodist Church and seeing Bishop Delancey lay the cornerstone of this church." Mrs. Park, as the oldest member, was then presented with a rose by the youngest member, little Ruth Ann Smythe as a token of love and affection.

Mrs. Frank Wade was introduced as the third individual who had been a member of the congregation for more than fifty years. Mrs. Wade stated that she was born in January of the year in which the church was organized. She also was presented with a rose by little Miss Smythe.

Fred C. Wilcox, another member of long standing in the Episcopal Church was next introduced and responded in a light, humorous vein which kept the assemblage in an uproar.

Father Lynch then expressed great appreciation over the work that had been accomplished in Addison. "We are proud" he said, "not only of the work of your priest, but of what you people are doing. It is wonderful what your Auxiliary is accomplishing. It is far above the average for towns of this size. . . . . Great credit is due to the Rev. and Mrs. Withey for the work which they have been doing among you. . . . . In addition to what he has accomplished here, Father Withey has begun a church school in Lawrenceville. The school started with 6 members, now it is up to 38."

A history of the parish, written in 1927, by Allan Taylor, was read by Curtis Taylor, younger brother of the author, who is now located in South Africa as a member of the consular service. The history had been prepared with great thoroughness and described in detail many of the financial struggles through which the congregation passed from its founding to the 1920's.

Mrs. Mabel Wombough, publisher of the Hornell Tribune-Times and Miss Stradella, both of Hornell, were introduced as descendants of original founders. Mrs. Charles, also of Hornell, commended the Addison Auxiliary for its energetic program. Others introduced were Mrs. Mary Sprague, who was instrumental in organizing the Altar Guild of the church. Miss Katharine Darrin, president of the Women's Auxiliary; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wade of Painted Post, former residents here, and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Davis.

Mrs. James Sexton, niece of the late Thomas Paxton of Addison, told of the hardships and Difficulties encountered by the church attendants a generation or two ago. Mrs. Sexton was a member of the first Altar Guild at Blossburg, Pa. Extracts from the church records were read by Father Withey.

Fred G. Clark, junior vesteryman, was enthusiastic ove rthe recent progress of the church, saying "Our turning point came when Father Lynch was sent here. Father Withev has done a very wonderful work and success will come if we all do our part." Mr. Clark emphasized the need of continually looking forward, not backward.

It was announced that the congregation will go on its summer schedule starting the second Sunday in June. One service will be held each Sunday, the hour being eleven o'clock.

Band To Play At Woodhull Tonight

The Addison High School band will liven things up in Woodhull tonight during the entertainment being staged by J. J. Johnson, Plymouth automobile dealer. The public is invited.

Charles B. Armstrong

Charles B. Armstrong, for many years a prominent merchant of Mill Hall, Pa., died Monday, May 7, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Guy Ricker, on Front street, Addison.

Mr. Armstrong was born February 5, 1863 at Millsburg, Pa., a son of Robert and Mary Jane Gordon Armstrong. In 1883 he was united in marriage with Miss Emma Greth of Bellefonte, Pa. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Mill Hall, Pa., where Mr. Armstrong conducted a general store for thirty-five years thereafter. From 1924 to 1928, following Mr. Armstrong's retirement from the store, they lived near Natchez, Miss., and 1928 to 1931 they resided in Williamsport, Pa. More recently he has made his home with his daughter in Addison. He was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge at Lock Haven, Pa., and of the Golden Eagles of Mill Hall.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Emma Armstrong; two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Anderson of Port Gibson, Miss. and Mrs. Guy Ricker of Addison; a son, Paul, of Natchez, Miss.; a sister, Mrs. Jennie Sellers of Lewistown, Pa.; and a brother, Grant Armstrong of Warren, Pa.

The funeral was held Wednesday, May 9 at the home of Mrs. Ricker, Rev. Ralph Webb, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church officiating. Burial took place in Cedar Hill Cemetery, near Mill Hall, Pa.

Shift in Weather Destroys Garden Plants

Old Man Weather shifted suddenly into reverse on Tuesday, shoving the mercury down below the freezing point. Many local gardeners who had transplanted tomato plants during the several preceding days awoke to find their efforts gone for naught.

Fredonia Symphony Gave Fine Concert

A small, but enthusiastic crowd attending the Fredonia Symphony last Wednesday evening, enjoyed the fine concert presented in Addison High School auditorium. Never has better music been presented an Addison audience than that heard last week and the audience applauded every number with such vigor the musicians were generous with echores.

An effort will be made to enlist public support for a return engagement of the Symphony next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Strait spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Hannahs.

Around Our House

Fight the Fly

The time to fight the house fly is before the fly appears, says the New York state college of home economics. The homemaker who takes the offensive in early spring will not find herself on the defensive in August.

Screens are among the best weapons to use against the fly. Screens in just a few of the windows, or in the windows only are not enough. Every window in the house, and every door, should have its screen. Full-length window screens add greatly to summer comfort, for then, windows can be opened at the top or bottom for better ventilation, and cracks are eliminated between the upper edges and the top sash which admit flies and other insects.

Copper screening will not rust and lasts for many years. Though it costs a little more, it is economical over a period of years. Painted or galvanized steel screening is the cheapest kind, and gives satisfactory service for several seasons if it is brushed with oil when stored in the fall. Its wear depends on climate.

The best way to destroy the fly, however, is to destroy its breeding place. House flies not only annoy in summer, but menace health, because they breed in filth and feed on filth often before alighting on human food. They pick up germs on the thick hairs and bristles which cover their legs and bodies. Absolute cleanliness in disposal of all garbage and waste, whether in the house or barnyard, is essential in fighting the fly.

Cabbage Recipes

Here is another way to serve cabbage that will please everyone:

SCALLOPED CABBAGE AND TOMATOES

Boil chopped and shredded cabbage 5 minutes. Place a layer in a buttered baking dish, add a few cracker crumbs. Season with salt and pepper. Pour over a small amount of strained tomatoes. Repeat until dish is ¾ full. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in oven 20 minutes.

This is one of a series of cabbage recipes prepared for this paper by the Consumers Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. Watch for others.

Farm Credit Administration Reduces Interest on Crop Loans

I. O. Ottaway, secretary-treasurer of the Olean Production Credit Association has just received word from Governor W. I. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration in Washington, D. C., that the interest rate on new loans from production credit associations has been reduced from 5 1-2 to 5 per cent.

According to Mr. Ottaway the new 5 per cent interest rate becomes effective immediately on all new loans and advances made by the association and will be applicable until further notice.

"The new interest rate of 5 per cent will not affect loans already advanced in full, Mr. Ottaway said. These will continue to bear the rate of interest prevailing at the time the loan was closed. The interest charges on loans from the association are collected when the loans are mature. The Olean association is now making loans on acceptable crop and chattel security to farmers in Chautauqua, Cattaraugus, Allegany and Steuben counties.

"The reduction of the interest to 5 per cent on new loans" Mr. Ottaway continued, "is made possible by a recent sale of Federal intermediate credit bank debentures to investors at an unusually low rate of interest. The association gets money to lend farmers from the Federal intermediate credit bank of Springfield, Mass.

"The lowering of the interest rate on new loans to 5 per cent is the second reduction in two months, the rate having been reduced from 6 to 5 1-2 per cent on March 16.

"According to Governor Myers", said Mr. Ottaway, the Federal intermediate credit bank is passing on immediately to farmer-borrowers from production credit associations the saving made possible by lower cost of getting money. The confidence of investors in the security of the intermediate credit banks has been such that the banks are able to get money to lend at the lowest discount rate in their history. Governor Myers says that the resulting low rate of interest on production credit association loans is enabling farmer-borrowers to save thousands of dollars on the cost of their farming operations this year. If the associations make sound loans and loans that are collectible, an adequate supply of low cost money will continue to be available".

League Appeals To U. S. Court To Protect Farmers' Returns

New York, May 9—Charging that continuance of the practice allowing New York City milk dealers who do not advertise to sell milk for less than advertising dealers must charge threatens to reduce dairy farmers' income, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., is seeking protection of producers' returns in the United States Statutory Court, Second District.

Borden Farm Products Company started injunction proceedings against Commissioner of Agriculture Charles H. Baldwin and other state officials to restrain them from carrying out that provision of the state milk control law allowing sale of unadvertised brands of milk for less than advertised brands. Borden alleges that this differentiation is unconstitutional.

Several small, recently organized cooperative organizations in various parts of the state working with several New York City independent dealers' organizations secured permission to become co-defendents with the state of New York. They have filed a batch of affidavits seeking to retain for small dealers the privilege of selling milk for less than those who advertise their brand.

In entering the case the Dairymen's League announces that it does so to protect the interest of its 40,000 farmer membes as well as producers generally. It is argued by the League that continuance of the practice of selling unadvertised milk cheaper than the advertised brands will drag down the returns to dairy farmers. It points out that many dealers selling unadvertised milk have testified in other instances that they are losing money. Continuance of this, the League says, can only result in such losses ultimately being passed back to dairy farmers.

Breeders Make Rapid Progress

Twelve Bull Associations Are Already Formed in New York State

During the last week in April, Holstein breeders in Madison, Ulster and Allegany counties organized the tenth, eleventh and twelfth bull associations in New York state, says Professor S. J. Brownell of the New York state college of agriculture.

Ten of these organizations were formed during the past six months and others are in process in Wyoming, Onondaga and St. Lawrence counties.

"Each of the new groups", Professor Brownell points out, "own four or more bulls cooperatively. The largest organization is in Wyoming county where fifteen Guernsey breeders own ten bulls. With the exception of Brown Swiss, each of the major breeds is represented in these cooperative breeding programs. One Ayrshire, one Jersey, three Guernsey and seven Holstein organizations are listed at the present time."

Professor Brownell says that all dairymen who form organizations should have identical ideas as to a program of disease control; they should agree on the quality and price of bulls to purchase; they should agree on housing and management of the sire; and every dairyman in a bull association should have the same policy of record keeping, to prove the ability of bull-association sires to transmit desirable characters to their offspring.

Kanona Man Owns Proven Jersey Bull

The records obtained in the dairy herd improvement association show that the bull in use in the good Jersey herd of A. W. Norris of Kanona to be a proven sire.

That means that the daughters of this bull produce better than their dams, and that the bull himself transmits high production. Several bulls have been previously proven in Steuben County—after they had been slaughtered. Mr. Norris has kept Carey's Fairy Queen's Owl until his value was known.

A study of the records of 3419 bulls in dairy herd improvement association herds reveal that only one herd sire in three is capable of bettering the production of the cows to which he is bred. One-third, according to this survey, maintain the production and another third reduce it.

Dairymen have recently organized through the farm bureau, a program to reduce the risk and chance of dairy cattle breeding and to increase profits by the careful selection of herd sires.

It is a matter of special interest that Steuben's first living proven sire should be the property of A. W. Norris, chairman of the farm bureau Better Bull Program.

How What and Why?

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State colleges of agriculture and home economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Sludge as a Fertilizer

F. W. C., Akron, writes: Kindly advise if the dried sludge from a disposal plant has any value as a fertilizer. If so, advise how to apply and the quantity to use."

Professor E. Van Alstine replies: "Van Slyke in his book on fertilizers and crop production reports that sewage sludge may contain as much as five per cent nitrogen and three per cent phosphate acid. On this basis it compares somewhat with dried blood, but does not contain as much plant nourishment.

"One hundred pounds of sewage sludge mixed with one hundred pounds of superphosphate would make a fertilizer suitable for use on most crops. Use from 500 to 2,000 pounds to the acre. The amount to use depends on the kind of crop and condition of the soil."

Trouble With Walnuts

F. P. P., Fulton, says: Last fall I gathered more than one-half bushel of English walnuts from a tree planted twelve years ago. My only trouble was in getting the outside shucks off and leaving the nut clean. How can this be handled? Many of the nuts drop from the shuck, while others are kept firmly inside and become discolored as the shucks soften. How can this be avoided?

"I would appreciate a chart for spraying cherry and apple trees."

Professor L. H. MacDaniels of the pomology department answers: Bacterial infection, resulting from a disease known as bacteriosis, may prevent English walnuts from coming out of their shucks. This is usually apparent during the summer. The diseased nuts show black spots which disfigure the husks, and sometimes cause the nuts to fall off in advance. In California, this disease is controlled by spraying with a 3-3-50 Bordeaux mixture about the time the trees blossom.

"Sticking of the husks is also caused by wet weather in the fall, or by a lack of maturity in the nuts before the foliage is frozen off. The definite cause of your trouble cannot be stated without further information. If you have seen black spots on the young nuts that indicate bacterial disease, I suggest you write to Dr. D. S. Welch of the plant pathology department at Cornell for more help.

"Cornell bulletin P-498, 'Protecting Orchard Crops From Diseases and Insects', has been sent to you."

Hen, Rabbit Manure

Mrs. E. H. W., Williamstown, writes: What is the best way to use hen and rabbit manure? I have used it on hill corn the same as commercial fertilizer, and it burned the seed badly, even when covered thinly with soil:"

Professor E. L. Worthen of the agronomy department replies: "Poultry manure and rabbit manure both class as 'hot manure'. Burning will result where they are applied in the row or hill.

"For best results, add one hundred pounds of superphosphate to each ton of manure and apply broadcast, preferably before plowing Use four to eight tons to the acre."

Fairs Reflect Farm Recovery

Large Number of Early Requests Are Made For Educational Exhibits.

State and interstate fairs throughout the United States apparently feel the situation of better agricultural conditions judged by the large number of early applications for U. S. department of agriculture educational exhibits.

Requests from about thirty fairs of this type for carload groups of educational exhibits have been received by the department, according to information reaching the New York state college of agriculture.

The fairs will be held in twenty different states which broadly represent all agricultural areas of the country. This unusual number of applications so early in the season is believed to point to much better conditions among the fairs than have existed recently.

Fairs that have been forced to curtail educational features, the statement reads, are finding it possible to resume. Fairs that have maintained educational departments in spite of hard times are looking toward enlarged programs.

The federal department of agriculture is preparing to display exhibits that aim to show processes and results of crop adjustment and establishment of a balance between production and consumption. In addition, the exhibits aim to show the benefits of such adjustments in soil improvement and holding soil fertility.

Correspondence with the department, also, indicates that for agricultural information to aid the farm recovery is not limited to state fairs, but extends to all gatherings of farm people.

CARE OF TURKEY POULTS

By H. D. Munroe

The demand for turkey eggs for hatching and for baby poults is greater this spring than last. This would indicate that people who did not raise turkey poults last year are going to try raising them, and also that those that did raise some poults last year are going to raise even more this spring. Although the care and management for baby poults is similar to baby chicks there are a few things that should be considered by anyone raising young turkeys.

Do not crowd turkey poults or brood too many in one flock. One hundred poults to a 10 x 12 brooder house is an ideal flock. The fire in the brooder stove should be started at least forty-eight hours before the poults are placed in the brooder. A temperature of 90 degrees to 95 degrees at the edge of the hover, two inches from the floor, is about right for the first week. Each week thereafter the temperature should be decreased five degrees until 70 degrees is reached. It should then be held at this point until the poults are well feathered and have learned to roost.

Night crowding or piling is a common complaint where turkeys are brooded artificially. The use of dim lights all night in the brooder house is probably the best method to prevent crowding during the early part of the brooding period. A low perch or roost should be placed near the brooder while the poults are young and every inducement made for early roosting. Poults on roost will not crowd.

Great care should be taken during the first few days to see that turkey poults learn to eat. Place shallow feeders or boxes filled with a reliable turkey starting mash before poults as soon as they are put in the brooder. Young turks do not eat mash as readily as baby chicks and must be taught to eat.

It is very important that young poults be taught to eat. This can be accomplished by the feeder spending some time with them. Some turkey raisers put a few older poults in the young flock for a few days as a means of teaching the little poults to eat.

Another means of teaching all the flock to eat is the use of a moist mash. A moist mash mixed with milk and composed of ground alfalfa and turkey mash should be started the first few days the poults are in the brooder. Some feeders grind green alfalfa in a food chopper and sprinkle it over the mash as a means of teaching poults to eat.

Many little turkeys starve to death the first week they are under the brooded stove and it is up to the feeder to prevent this by seeing to it that they all learn to eat during the first few days in the brooder.

All available bulletins of the New York state colleges of agriculture and home economics are listed in the single leaflet E-47. If you want information about any particular farm crop or problem, consult this list of free publications. Write to the office of publication at the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., for a copy.

On July 1, the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture launches a new program to increase accurate forecasts. It calls for more stations to make upper air soundings by airplanes and for more frequent daily forecasts.

A. H. S. NINE MAKES IT 3 STRAIGHT AT COUNTY SEAT

Haverling Rally Stopped Dead When Hopper Stepped To Mound

The Addison High School base ball team took another stride up the pennant ladder last Friday afternoon when Coach Hewson's boys decisively trimmed the county seat lads 9 to 3. The game was greatly marred by intensely cold weather which took all the base ball pep out of the players and numbed their hands so the Addison infield "muffed" a number of chances that might have held Bath to a shut-out score.

As usual Addison had much the better of the opposition in the pitching department. Flynn started the game and except for some damaging errors came along in nice style. His curves had the Bath boys breaking their backs swinging, only 5 men hitting safely during the game. However, in the fifth inning a combination of circumstances had the southpaw in trouble. Errors and bases on balls were responsible for the bags being all populated with Haverling players when "Smokey" Joe Hopper was given the signal to take up the flinging duties.

There followed the finest exhibition or relief hurling seen in the county league this season. Going in "cold" with a man on every base, Joe was as cool as the weather. The first man he pitched to struck out, the second sent a pop fly to Hovey in short stop, and the third man took three lusty swings at the speed man's smoke balls and sat down on the hardwood bench. It was a great display of coolness and pitching skill demonstrating that Hopper is the class of the league.

Ackerson, Bath pitcher continually had himself in trouble because of his own wildness. He walked 8 men, hit one batter and delivered some seven wild pitches. Aside from all that he pitched a fair game allowing the heavy swatters of Addison only 7 hits.

Robbins and Hovey played their usual strong defensive game, but Beers who is ordinarily strong on the hot corner had three misplays charged against him. However, he redeemed himself at bat, getting two hits and a base on balls, stole three bases and scored three runs. Mathews used his bat with telling effect, making 2 hits, pilfering 2 bases and scoring 3 runs.

Reed and Lent starred for Bath, each making fine running catches in the outfield which robbed Addison batters of hits. Moulton succeeded in getting to first every time up.

The score:

Addison	AB	R	H	PO	A	E
Hallet, 2b	3	2	0	1	2	1
Beers, 3b	3	3	2	1	2	3
Hadlock, cf	4	1	1	1	0	0

Summary: Struck out by Ackerson 8, Flynn 7, Hopper 3; base on balls off Ackerson 5, Flynn 3; hit by pitcher Ackerson 1, Flynn 1; wild pitch, Ackerson 7; stolen bases, Beers 3, Mathews 2, Hadlock 1, Robbins 1, Moulton 1; umpire, Crippen of Bath.

Austinburg Defeats Jasper

Whitesville Trounces Woodhull in "Little Six" Contest—Troupsburg Outplays Freeman.

Austinburg trimmed the Jasper "Aces" in a "Little Six" league tilt last Sunday, 10 to 8. The Austinburg team scored all of its runs in the first three innings. Moore started on the mound for Jasper but received very poor support. He was relieved by Bob Drake who received good support from the men in the field and held the opposing men scoreless for the rest of the game.

Games played in the "Little Six" with final scores of Sunday's contests were as follows:

Austinburg 10, Jasper 8
Whitesville 18, Woodhull 2
Troupsburg 26, Freeman 17

Friday Night Is Family Nite At Star Theatre

Last week the Star Theatre started what is known as family night on Friday. Every Friday night from now on will be known as family night, and to make this a real family affair Manager Smith has tied-up with Chart's Market which will furnish several baskets of groceries ti be given away Free. Last week the several baskets went over very big, and the people were well pleased to accept the same, they not only saw a great show, but took home a basket of real groceries. Come down and see the show, you may take home the groceries this week.

The average monthly farm wage, with board, for New York state was $23 on April 1 this year, as compared to $20.50 a year ago.

Tioga Edges Addison Nine in Practice Tilt

The Tioga Cubs, one of the leading contenders in the southern section of the Tri-County league, edged out the Addison nine 5-4 in a warm up encounter at Tioga. Don Grange pitched a masterful game for Addison and Enderle, heaving for the Pennsylvanians, kept the situation well in hand.

The line-up:

ADDISON — Grange, p; Brennen, Stowell, c; J. Grange, 1b; Hewson, 2b; Heidrick, ss; Willis, Toby, 3b; Hoyt, Daddato, lf; Riffle, cf; Finnerty, rf.

Hornell Here To Decide League Leadership Fri

One of the most crucial baseball games of the high school season will be played Friday afternoon when Hornell comes to Addison for a battle that will decide the leadership of Steuben County League. Addison and Hornell are now tied with three games each and no defeats, a deadlock that must be broken by the coming encounter.

As far as records go there seems to be little to choose between the two nines. Both have good hitting strength and strong defensive players. Coach Hewson figures that in Hopper he has the peer of Steuben high school pitchers, but Hornell also boasts of a fine slabman, Flansberg having shut out Northside last Friday, by the score of 5 to 0. Addison owes its perfect record to successive victories over Corning Free Academy, Northside and Bath. Hornell has turned back Bath, Painted Post and Northside.

A large crowd is expected out Friday to see this hot game between the two league leaders. To add to the festive occasion the Addison High School band will be on hand to furnish music between innings.

The league standing to date is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Addison	3	0	1000
Hornell	3	0	1000
Painted Post	1	1	500
C. F. A.	1	2	333
Northside	0	3	000
Bath	0	3	000

The drought-stricken western states were partially relieved by showers and snow in some parts the first of the week. Rains were not general, however and government officials are beginning to regard this as the most severe drought in recent history of the nation. Terrific dust storms have added to destruction wrought by dry weather and insects in many of the states affected.

TRIBULATIONS IN TARIFF

Washington, May 14—Tariff-making, which usually is a cold subject with citizens far removed from the lanes of commerce but always a hot subject and a choice bone of contention in Congress, has come to the front as the chief political fire-brand of measures now pending on the legislative program.

It has been revealed that when the Doughton reciprocal tariff bill comes up for action in the Senate, amendments will be offered by Republicans proposing to exempt from provisions of the bill particular commodities produced in states represented by Democratic Senators. Thus, the Democrats will be caught between the conflicting desires of protecting "home" commodities on the one hand and of supporting the President on the other.

For instance, a number of Democratic Senators are from states that are heavy producers of wool, and the wool growers are screaming against the reciprocal tariff bill. These Senators are eager to go along with the President, but they shrink from the prospect of voting for a bill that would make it possible to open the gates for cheap foreign wool. Many other commodities are similarly involved.

One leading Democratic Senator, it was reported, declared that if the bill passed, he may not even stand for reelection this year.

The time when Democrats from the south favored an all-round low tariff was before the industrial trend was toward the South.

Home-mixing of fertilizers is not difficult and saves money for farmers. Home-mixed fertilizers are equal in every way to factory-mixed goods.

Opener At Tuscarora Field Next Sunday; Braves Versus Addison

Mayor Sisto To Hurl Sizzler Over The Pan for First Pitch of Year—Harry Childs to Present Formidable Line-up.

The 1934 Tri-County League baseball season will get off to a flying start at Tuscarora Field next Sunday afternoon when the Painted Post Braves invade the local lair. Manager Riker has been putting the Addison athletes through some rigorous workouts during the present week and they are expected to be at the top of their form against the Braves.

The official league opening will be preceded by all the pomp and ceremony befitting the occasion. Mayor Angelo Sisto, who is reputed to boast blinding speed and a varied assortment of dazzling hooks, will step to the rubber for the initial pitch of the current year. Back of the plate will be Attorney Charles L. Crane who was listed among the top-notchers in the Addison sector one or two baseball generations back. At the plate will be Burrell Vastbinder, dyed in the wool follower of the national pastime and unquestionably regarded as the best know and most popular sport from the Southern Tier. Vas has manufactured a few Ruthian clouts in his day and speculation is rife as to whether the keenness of his eye lingers as of yore.

When the formalities are ended, the big show will get underway. Don Grange is expected to receive the hurling assignment for Addison. Manager Riker or Harold Stowell will do the backstopping. Infielders will include John Grange, Wendell Hewson, Piper Heidrick, Lawrence Toby and Dick Willis. The gardeners will include Frank Finnerty, Red Hoyt, Gib Doddato and the ever reliable Riffle.

The Braves will present a strong line-up selected by Manager Harry Childs from among Wilson, Spoor, BeGell, Decker, Van Gorder, Anderson, Lindsley, Childs, Crumm, Ketchum, Herrington, Roach, Long, Grace, Ober, Giometti, Watson, Winner, Borden, R. Childs, H. Childs, McChesney and Deneen.

with others who are working to restore to normal living, those caught in the present industrial dislocation.

Charity Proves Failure

"For years human needs were thought to be met by material assistance alone and by the alleviation of misery. This was provided in the form of neighborly service, almsgiving within religious circles, mutual aid in the Guild System and finally by the assumption of public responsibility through the enactment of the Poor Law in 1601. Without seeking the causes of dependency, the underlying motive was the alleviation of misery and suffering.

"This form of charity failed because it merely alleviated, rarely if ever cured and never prevented the condition that led to dependency and yet, upon this tradition has been built our present conception of human needs and was, to a certain extent, the basis of thinking and public action in the administration of relief.

"For some time past, it has been the conviction that in dealing with a family, all of its needs, mental, spiritual, physical, economic, must be considered and that relief might be only one of the many tools to rehabilitate the family. It is apparent that very little thought has been given to the future in recent years. The present need of a family has been the consideration.

"We find the peak of the relief load in New York State appeared in February, 1934. At that time there were 262,730 families and non-family individuals receiving some form of relief in the state. There were 1,002,000 individuals aided, representing eight per cent of our population. In the United States there were 3,500,000 families receiving relief or about one in nine of our population.

"Beginning November 1, 1931 the State of New York, recognizing the inability of the localities to meet the additional burden, supplied from state funds a certain portion of the relief necessary. During the period from November 1, 1931 to October 31, 1933 New York State contributed 190 million dollars.

"Later the Federal government saw the need for additional funds, not in New York State alone, but in every state and in every locality and they in turn began to participate in relieving the localities of their burdens. From the beginning of Federal relief to the end of 1933 they expended 790 million dollars in assisting the various states and subdivisions.

Standards of Relief

"Not only did the state and federal government contribute considerable sums but they also prepared standards of relief to be given, and failure to meet these standards by any locality deprived that locality of the right to participate in reimbursement from the government. This, in effect, caused a national standard to be enforced in the providing of public relief.

"It is apparent, unless there is a change in the local taxing methods, whereby localities can raise funds by methods other than thru real estate, it will be necessary for the state and federal government to continue their policy for a long time, in fact indefinitely.

"In considering the relief needs of the future, I believe that it is essential that we should first consider the attitude of the state and federal government in this respect. First we must assume that the necessity for state and federal aid will be more or less of a permanent nature and as long as the state or federal government are providing the funds they will also dictate the policies to be followed in the expenditure of these funds. I believe that it will be necessary, if the localities expect reimbursement from the government, they must change the attitude toward the recipients of relief and establish a new conception of relief.

"They must break down ideas based on centuries of past experience. They must recognize that relief must not only alleviate but cure and prevent, and furnish an opportunity for a more complete way. The community must recognize that relief is not an agent supplementary to business to take up its slack. It must recognize that a relief policy which does not have as its goal the replacing of dependents on a self-sustaining basis, is socially and economically unsound.

Is Social Insurance

"I believe the government will demand that we must now develop a long-time program and policy in that we consider relief, not as welfare work. They will demand charity, but as a form of social insurance; that there will be no stigma of incompetence, shiftlessness, or ignorance as the cause of dependency; and that we must recognize more fully the newer type of retunity to build and achieve in a cipients of relief who heretofore maintained themselves and their self-respect."

Mr. Hardenbrook then discussed the various classifications requiring relief—rural people, those industrially stranded, members of the urban class, youths unable to find work, jobless men between 45 and 64, the floating population, so-called white collar workers—and continued:

"In summarization of the above interpretation of the relief program of the future, which believe will be instituted by the Federal and State Governments, I believe it calls for a change of thinking and a better knowledge of the problems facing relief workers, and for a survey, in every local community, to establish a policy which can be met by that locality without destroying the financial structure of the locality and that policy to be in the same time in accord with the demands of the higher units of Government.

"There must be a reorganization of much wasteful, overlapping, and ineffectual work, the foundation of a complete program between public and private agencies and between organizations and individuals, who are engaged in relief activities. The future program will be to retain what is good in social work, practice and preserve permanent values and to secure a social justice for all. This I believe to be the program of the future.

Have High Standards

"We all believe that adequate care and relief must be given and that no person shall be allowed to be cold or hungry; that adequate care must be given the sick, but in doing this, we must not establish standards higher for relief cases in any locality than the standards maintained by the thousands of borderline cases, who, as stated above, are losing their homes to pay the costs. Relief must be sufficient to meet the needs of individuals or families, but should not be given to the extent that it destroys individual initiative to secure work and provide for oneself and family rather than live on public funds.

"From my observations of various state and federal relief agencies especially the New York State Temporary Emergency Relief Board, I believe that organization is deliberately planning to take over all home and work relief activities in the State of New York and thereby make their temporary positions permanent. This is one thing I believe should be fought by all persons regardless of political belief.

"Home rule and the right to determine local policy would be gone forever. Past experience has shown us this department has been guided by trained social workers from cities, who, judging from the regulations issued, have little or no knowledge of rural conditions. This is evident to anyone familiar with recent home and work relief regulations. The furnishing of public relief should remain a local function and not to be made a political football for any party or governmental bureau."

Supervisors Dine On Local Produce

The Steuben County Board of Supervisors attended in a body the County Products dinner served by the Steuben County Home Bureau on Monday, May 14th. The dinner was served at the Masonic Hall in Bath and was arranged at this time to coincide with the regular meeting of the Board. A number of other county officials attended the dinner, bringing the total number to fifty-one.

The foods served were all Steuben County products with the exception of the coffee. The menu was: Grape juice, fricasseed chicken with biscuits, mashed potatoes, harvard beets, mixed vegetable salad, whole wheat rolls and butter, coffee, maple sundae and home-made cookies. The actual cost of the menu was 32 cents per person.

Plans for the dinner were made by a committee composed of Mrs. Aaron Putnam of Wheeler, Mrs. Fred Ives of Avoca, and Mrs. Leon Fenton of Savona, and those assisting with the preparing and serving of the meal were: Mrs. C. C. Cornue, Mrs. L. D. Clark, Mrs. John Nipher and Mrs. Leo Hamblin of Kanona; Mrs. Levi Walker of Bath, Mrs. Chester Brundage and Mrs. William Miller of Pleasant Valley; Mrs. A. J. Conner of Avoca; Mrs. Thomas Mullen and Mrs. R. P. Thatcher of Canisteo; Mrs. H. S. Sirrine and Mrs. Arch Sandford of Hammondsport; Mrs. Fay Eells, Mrs. Walling and Mrs. Andrew Smith of Savona; Mrs. H. D. Wood of Corning; and Mrs. Arling Cobb of Greenwood.

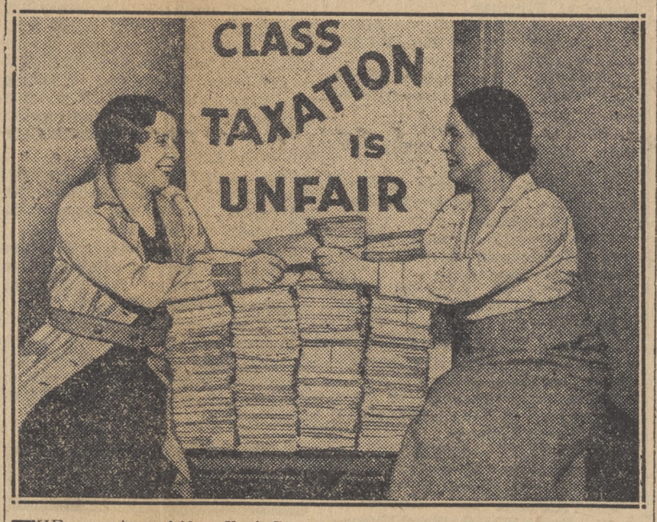
Committee Discusses Program Plans

The Executive committee of Steuben County Home Bureau met Monday, May 14, at the Home Bureau office in Bath. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. H. D. Wood of Corning, chairman. All members were present, Mrs. Putnam, vice-chairman, Mrs. R. P. Thatcher, secretary, and committee members, Mrs. Ives, Mrs. Fenton, Mrs. Sandford and Mrs. Cobb.

The Committee discussed the requests for the Home Bureau program work during the coming year and made out a tentative list of subjects to be discussed. This list will be submitted to Home Bureau units throughout the county within the next few weeks.

Plans for the very near future of interest to all women of the county, are: some canning demonstrations, probably to be held in June; and some meetings at which the various types of chairseating, —cane, rush and splint,—will be taught. The committee is also planning a special conference for local unit officers, which will probably be held sometime in August. Final dates and places of these meetings will be announced very soon.

Motorists Storm Albany With Petitions for Fair Taxation



THE motorists of New York State pay upward of $80,000,000 annually in special taxes — gasoline taxes and motor vehicle license fees —for the "construction and maintenance of highways and bridges." Only about one-tenth of that sum is being appropriated for such purposes. Yet, the state has asked the Federal Government to advance highway funds for needed highway improvements. Such funds are said to be especially needed because of the severe winter which ruined many roads.

Through the New York State Highway Users Conference the motorists of New York are asking WHY there should be any lack of funds. Above are Esther Wenger of Rensselaer, and Lorraine Stein, of Schenectady in the Albany office of the Conference counting and assembling petitions from hundreds of thousands of motorists who are tired of paying for something they don't get.

As fast as the petitions come in they are being sent to Governor Lehman and members of the Legislature.

To the Honorable
HERBERT H. LEHMAN, Governor
State of New York
Albany, New York

We, the undersigned taxpayers, respectfully petition through the NEW YORK STATE HIGHWAY USERS CONFERENCE that the emergency additional 1c gasoline tax be NOT re-enacted, but expire in June, 1934, as pledged and as provided by law.

We submit that ALL highway revenues should be expended for highway improvements EXCLUSIVELY. A 2c gasoline tax, plus reasonable motor vehicle fees, would finance adequate highway programs and provide practical unemployment relief.
